A GLASS roo Mucu.—Joseph Glass was on the ench for taking too many glasses. He is already noter indictment for a misdemeanor. Policeman Antie said he understood that Gluss on Saturday night was insulting women on the street. Wit-ness did not see that, but he did see that he was drunk, so he jugged him. The Judge didn'think the indiscretion so slight as his attorner think the indiscretion so slight as his attorney did, so he required $100 security for three months. Drenk, but not Robbed.—John Larder was also druuk and fighting, and hence naturally got into jail, and thence into this court. Ou Saturday night Larder said at Wechtell's boarding house he was robbed; and because the witness didn't believe it. Larder knocked him in the eye. Subsequently Larder found the money; and as the bar keeper didn't relish the treatment, he sent for the watchmen, who took the offending individual to jail. ISTOLS ALL ROUND. - We have refrained from no-icing the affray which occurred at the Augusta of getting a correct version from the numerous onflicting rumors in reference to it.

It appears from the testimony before the magis-rates at the examination on Saturday, that Mr.
'arish was scated at the breakfast table when Mr. and Mrs. Biggs came in to their usual sents, a few feet from him, Biggs then went up to Purish, and ordered him to leave the table. He repeated the order, when Parish arose, and a scuffle ensued.— Persons interfered and got then separated, when Biggs drew a pistol and lired twice at Parish. Parish then fired twice as he retreated toward the door.

Some of the witnesses testify that each fired from behind, or through the half-shut door.—
There is a little discrepancy in the version of different witnesses as to the latter part of the melee, owing to the configuration but all earner as to the owing to the confusion, but all agree as to the irst two shots of each. The shots were most ran-lom and reckless, and caused great consternation the dining room. All the testimony as to the affray "down stairs" is interesting, but the account of the origin—the alleged attention to the wile of defendant—her communicating it to her husband, and their plan to entrap the unwary bird, with the conflicting evidence as to the denoument, constitute a little episode in the monotony of life, that we must be indulted in recording—denote in the defendance.

FOUND GUILTY.—Our readers will remember the noted Boyd Wilkinson case at lowa City, in which a man was taken from his hed and the bosom of his family, by some dozen or two of ruffaus, and bound hand and foot and east alive into the river, where he met an instant and miserable death. CHAPTER I .- THE NOCTURNAL VISIT. * * Whence is that knocking

Hurricane Hall is a large old family mausion built of dark, red saudstone, in one of the loueli-est and wildest of the mountain regions of Vir

The estate is surrounded on three sides by a range of steep, gray rocks, spiked with clumps of dark evergreens, and called, from its borse-shoc form, the Devil's Hoof.

On the fourth side the ground gradually descends in broken rock and barren soil to the edge of the wild resurricia them.

Major Ira Warfield, the louely proprietor of the Hall, was a veteran officer, who, in disgust at what he supposed to be ill-requited services, had retired from public life to spend the evening of his vigorous age on this his patrimonial estate Here he lived in seclusion, with his old-fashioned housekeeper, Mrs. Condiment, and his old family servants and his favorite dogs and horses. Here his nornings were usually spent in the chase in his mornings were usually spent in the chase, in which he excelled, and his afternoons and even

In person Mr. Warfield was tail and strongly built, reminding one of some old iron-limbed boughas of the olden time. His features were large and harsh; his complexion dark red, as that of one brouzed by long exposure and flushed with strong drink. His herce, dark gray eyes were surmounted by thick, heavy black brows, that, when gathered into a frown, reminded me for the works and the seather at the state.

Warfield had mysteriously disappeared, and not without some suspicion of toul play on the part of the only person in the world who had a strong interest in his "taking off." However these things might be, it was known for a certainty that Old Hurricane had an only sister, widowed, sick and poor, who with her son dragged on a wretched life of ill-required toil, severe privation and painful infirmity, in a distant city, nu-ther.

It was the night of the last day of October, 1845. The evening had closed in very dark and gloomy. About dask the wind arose in the north-west, driving up masses of leaden had clouds, and in a few minutes the ground was

Upon this evening, then, there was left at Harricane Hall, only Major Warfield, Mrs. Condi-ment, his little old housekeeper, and Wool, his body servant. Early in the evening the old hall was shut up

It was about ten o'clock that night that Old Hurricane, well wrapped up in his quilted flannel dressing gown, sat in his well padded easy chair before a warm and bright fire, taking his comfort in his own most comfortable bedroom. This was the hour of the coziest enjoyment lo the self-indulgent old Sybarite, who dearly loved his own case. Yery comfortable was Old Harricane; and as he toasted his feet and sipped his punch, while his black servant, Wool, applied the warming pan to his cozy couch, he fairly hugged himself for enjoyment, and declared that nothing under heaven would or could tempt him to leave that room and that house and go out into that storm on that that house and go out into that storm on that uight. Just as he had come to this emphatic determ nation he was startled by a violent ringing of the door-bell. Ordering Wool to go and see what was the matter, he hastily arrayed himself in his sleeping habiliments and jumped into bed, determined not to be call-

At this moment Wool respected.

"Shut the door, you villian! Do you intend to stand there holding it open on me all night?" you ciferated the old man.

Wool hastily closed the offending portals, and nurried to his master's side.

"Well, sir, who was it rung the bell?"
"Sar, de Reverend Mr. Parson Goodwin, and he say how he must see yoursulf, persenally, alone!"
"See me, you villain! Didn't you tell him that I had retired?" had retired?"
"Yes, Marse, I tell him bow you were gone to bed and asleep morne'n an hour ago, and he or-dered me to come wake you up, and say how it were a matter o' life and death!'

"Sir, I am sorry to refuse your proffered hospitality and leave your comfortable roof to-night, and sorrier still to have to take you with me," said the pastor, gravely.
"Take ME with yon! No, no, my good sir! no, no, that is too good a joke—ha! ha!"
"Sir, I fear that you will find it a very serious one! Your servant told you that my errand was one of imminent urgency?"

"Yes, something like life and death..."

"Exactly—down in the cabin, near the Punch Bowl, there is an old woman dying..."

"There, I knew it. I was just saying there might be an old woman dying. But, my dear sir, what's that to me? What can I do?"

"Humanity, sir, would prompt you."

"But, my dear sir, how can I help her? I am not a physician to prescribe..."

growled the old man.

"To-morrow you may do that, but meanwhile, to-night, heing still in the commission of the peace, you are bound to get up and go with me to this woman's bedside."

"And what the demon is wauted of me there?"

"To receive her dying deposition! Good Heaven 'was she murdered, then?" exclaimed the old man, in alarm, as he started out of bed and began to draw on his nether garments.

"Be composed—she was not murdered," said the pastor.

"Be composed—she was not marnered, the pastor.
"Well, then, what is it? Dying deposition! It must concern a crime," exclaimed the old man, hastily drawing on his cont.
"It does concern a crime."
"What crime, for the love of heaven?"
"I am not at liberty to tell you. She will do that."

"Wool, go down and rouse up Jehu, and tell him to put Parson Goodwin's mule in the stable for the night Aud tell him to put the black draught borse to the close carriage, and light the front lanterus-for we shall have a dark and stormy road—Shut the door, you infernal!—I beg your pardon, parson, but that villain always leaves the door ajar after him."

The good parson howed gravely; and the major completed his toilet by the time the servant returned and reported the carriage ready. "To the Devil's Punch Bowl'—was the order given by Old Hurricane as he followed the minister into the carriage. "And now, sir," he continued, addressing his companion, "I think you had better repeat that part of the church litany that prays to be delivered from 'battle, minder and sudden death;' for if we should he so lucky as to escape Black Donald and his gang, we shall as to escape Black Donald and his gang, we shall have at least an equal chance of being upset in the darkness of these dreadful mountains."

Old Hurricane knew that, but though a great sensualist, he was a brave man, and so be had rather risk his life in a close carriago than suffer cold upon a sure-looted mule's back.

Alter many delays and perils, the pastor and Old Hurricane arrived at their destination, called the Witch's Hut or Old Hat's Cubin. In one corner of the hut, on a ragreed cough have great

"Is it possible you don't know me, master?"
"Not I, infaith." For the love of heaven, look at me and try to ecoliect me, sir. It is necessary some one autor-ity should be able to know me," said the woman, aising her haggard eyes to the face of her visitor. At this moment a violent blast of wind and hail roared down the mountain side and rattled against the wall, shaking me witch's hut, as if it would have shaken it about their area. It was a proper averture to the tale that was about to be told. Criver most was impossible until the storm raved past and was heard dying an deep reverberating echoes from the depths of the Devil's Panch Bowl.

"Well, sir, when they'd walk ahout in this 'fnswell, sir, when they d wark anont in this 'instal way, leadin' of the mule about a mile, I knew we was in the woods again—the very same woods and the very same path—I knowed by the feel of the place and the sound of the hishes, as we hit up against them each side, and also by the rumbling of the Spout as it tumbled along toward the Punch Bowl. We went down, and down, and down, and lower, and lower, and lower, until we got right down in the hottom of that hollow.

"Then westopped. A gate was opened. I put up my hand to raise the handkerchief, and see where I was; hut, just at that minnte, I felt the mizzle o' the pistle like a ring of ice right agin my right temple, and the willain growling into my ear:

"Tho, if you dare,' says t'other one, with the mizzle o' the pistol at my head.
I dropped my hand like lead. So they lead me ou a little way, and then up some steps. I counted them to myself as I went along. They were aix. You see, master, I took all this pains to know the house again. Then they opened a door that opened in the middle. They then went along a passage and up more stairs—there was ten and a turn, and then ton more. Then along another a passage, and then ten more. Then along another passage, and up another flight of starts, just like the first. Then along another passage, and up a third flight of stairs. They was alike.

"And what was I in this room for to do? I couldn't even form an idea. But presently my blood ran cold to hear a groun from behind the curtains—then another—and another—then a cry as of a child in mortal agony, saying.

"For the love of Heaven, save me!"

"I ran to the bed and dropped the eartains, and liked to have fainted at what I saw."

"And what did you see!" asked the magistrate.

"Go on, then."
"Well sir, she was a young creature, scarcely past childhood, if one might judge by here rail are and soft, rosy skin. I asked her to lot me take that black crape from her face and head, but she threw up her hands and exclaimed—
"Oh, no, no, for my life, no"
"Well, master, I hardly know how to tell you what followed—" said the old woman, hesitating in embarrassment.
"Go right straight on like a car of Justice and "Go right straight on like a car of Juggernaut, oman! Remember—the whole truth!"

"Well, master, in the next two hours there were twins born in that room—a boy and girl the boy was dead, the girl living. About twelve hours subsequent to the reading of this account, the young daughter herself was enveloped in flames, by a similar contiguity to the foot lights of a theatrical stage; and, like the first, she scarcely lingered 24 hours in unmittigated distress, before she, too, was called away from all the bright associations of youthful hope and gaiety.

The god of battle has been the principal of the deities there worshipped from time immemorial. Such a thing as real and permanent peace has not been known within the enthe 5,872 miles of territory embraced between Cape St Vincent in Portugal, and the Ural Mountains in Russis, and the 2.150 between Cape Nord kin n Finmark and Cape Matapan in the Morea, from the first settlements there thousands of years ago, down to the present time. Wars and rumors of ware have ever reigned within this center of the world's civillization. The doors of the tem ple of Janus have never been firmly barred, and the from and Mars has never laid aside his armor

At this increent there are apprehensions of a general clasting of the powers that there exist -The Empires, the Kingdoms, the Ecclesiasticates. the Electorates, the Grand Duchies, the Duchies, the Landgravaies, the Lordships, the Principalities, the Republics, and the free cities there, are now in a feveri h state of excitement. There is no telling what a day may bring forth, and trouble is scated upon many a royal brow. The present troubleus times have been pr duced by the insulaing remarks of the Emperor of France to the Austrian Minister. It is generally and reload that Napoleon III does not like the movements of l'ranc's Joseph, in Italy. Iu 1:49. the French Emperor bombarled Rame and restored the Pope to his temporal throne. Ever since that event, the troops of France have occu pled the Eternal City and held Civita Vicehea. His Holiness is getting a little weary, no doubt, 6: bis Gallie protector, and has recently been very obdurate to appeals and threats. It has all at once come into the mind of Napoleon that his Holizess has the promise of the protection of Francis Joseph in any event. Angry at being thus tas arted in whotever designs he may have had up a Italy, jedous of the power of Austria, and analous to find active employment for the nurne (w) (soldiers who hold the imperial diadear upon his head, it is not wonderful that their children would be educated, their law he should have snubbed the Austriau Minister in greatly enhanced in value, and they would be a way to recall the address of the first Emperor of France to Lord Wintworth, just before the breach sky of E loye. Anstrian troops are fast pouring into Italy. Francis Joseph has now more than 17 (60) fighting men concentrated in his Italian dominion, and is still gathering others there. He has fortified Peschiera, Maniua, and erous, and strengthened his garrisons in all the Roman legations Aud, in addition to these belligerent movements, the Arch Duke Maximilian, the viceroy of Italy, has sent his family to Trieste and arranged his palace to resist an idsurrec-

On the o her side, Napoleou is making gigantic additions to his mammoth military power, pro-Napoleon and the daughter of Victor Emanuel, and encouraging Sardinia to avenge the defeat of Novara. The Sardinian king replies that he has 129,000 brave troops ready to obey the will of heaven, and proclaims that he is not insensible to the cries of the oppressed Italians who groan under the Austrian voke

It is plain, therefore, that if war begins, the troops of Austria, Italy, Sardinia, and France will be engaged in it. Napoleon and Francis Joseph will strike for dominion in Italy. Their rmies will occupy the Peninsular, so famous on the field of battle, from the snowy summits of the Alps to the straights of Messina. There will be such an army of soldiers, and such a clash of arms, and such a struggle for empire, as have not been known since the days of the Casars.

In such an event it is not likely that all the other powers of Europe will be silent. Upon Anstria berder Turkey, Russia, and Prussia while the neighbors of France are the German Confederation, Belgium, Eugland and Spain, If the oppressed Italians rise against their Austriau rulers, Hungary will not be quiet. Nor will the ciavonic races, under the dominion of Russia and Tarkey, fail to catch the spark of liberty. As for resiless Poland, she will not be expected remain tranquil In such a sea of disturbance: and of course the German Liberals in such a melee will make Republican speeches, draft constitu tions, and chant with stentorian lungs the stirring "Fatherland." England, probably, would neither like to assist Austria or France in securing the dominion of Italy; and Russia, not liking any of the combatants too well, might leave them all to their fate, unless the voice of liberty should ring so clear from amid the general din, as to disrb the authority of the Czar in his vast domain.

In any event, the aspect of things in Europelis very tavorable at this time for the acquisition of Cuba by the United States without any intermeddling of transatlantic powers. Napoleon has as much as he can attend to at home, and he is the only monarch who would be likely to put bad notions into the mind of the Queen of Spain. If all bands in Europe will attend to their own fighting at home, and leave us to manifest destiny on this side of the great waters, things will turn out just as they should. Any how, it looks to us very much like the present state of Enrope does not warrant any of the powers there to be suggesting to pain, who has again and again received offers and sold territory on this continent, that it would be an insult for us to offer her a fair consideration for Cuba. These easily insulted powers have enough of their own matters to attend to at this time, and the sooner they make up their minds to the fact that the stars and stripes must ultimately float over Cuba, and such portions of Mexico and Central America as we want for our constantly welling population, the better. Of course the United States intend to have Cuba, and the getting of it is only a question of time and manner.

But if Europe should get into a general war about the Italian question, and the United States should have to come into the arena in consequence of the acquisition of Cuba, there would be such fighting as has not been known since the French Revolution. The land and the sea would be full of war, but it requires no prophet to foretell the result. While the thrones of Europe would knock against one another, and totter and fall; while one power would swallow up another and change the political geography of the older world, the United States would pursue her man feet destiny, whip out everything that came in her way, and take possession of enough of the territory of her contestants to pay for the powde burnt, the balls spent, and the time lost in win ning a game long since decided in our favor by manifest destiny.

The Kentucky Family Journal.

On Saturday last a specimen number of this paper was issued from the job office of the Louisville Daily Courier, and distributed over the city we hope may be a permanent paper, and was printwith new types, cast for the purpose, and rough, as always is the case with new types, a purchaser of a dollar's worth or more. f7 d10 little use being necessary to a first rate impression; but with this exception, the number ssued was a fair specimen of what may bereafter be expected.

And what better could be wished than this paper? All who have seen it must agree that it is a most admirable weekly. The articles are all written in a scholarly and manly style, free from political or religious bias. It contains reading matter good for persons of every class and de nomination, and in addition has a department made up expressly for children, which is worthy of all praise. The specimen number shows that the paper will want nothing that a strong editorial corps and suitable contributors at home and abroad can impart to it. It will contain editorials, letters, selections of prose and verse, transit a family journal in the true sense of the words. Of the editors of this paper we cannot speak in terms too high. They are gentlemen of taste and education, devoted to the great cause of imparting knowledge to the rising generation, and preparing our children for usefulness in after life. They are teachers in the true sense of the word, devoted to their profession not only as a livelihood, but as a calling which enlists their heart. They know how to write original matter as well as to make the right sort of selections for a popnlar paper. We hope that the enterprise which they have embarked may meet with approbation and general encouragement everywhere and succeed as it should with a good reward for those concerned

THE WARS OF THE POETS. - James Gordon Beunett, the poet, ambitious of bearing off the poetical honors of Scotland, has been saying very hard things of Bobby Burns, who, until the appearance of "Mary Ann," was regarded as "Scotia's Bard" par excellence. On the other hand, the poct of the Louisville Journal sees in the poetical Beunett a rival contributor to a New York flash paper .-He thinks a few more such gems as "Mary Ann" will take the shine out of his half-witty column, and accordingly the Journal is poking fun at Bennett, trying to heap ridicule upon his poetical talent and thereby to lessen the furor which greeted "Mary Ann." Envy is a dark, malignant passion and jealousy is as cruel as the grave!

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT TO THE DENOCRATIC PARTY We clip the following from the Owensboro American, a l'ope-fearing sheet:

DOWNFALL OF THE LOCOFOCO PARTY. -The down all and complete dissolution of the detestable Lo ofoco party is a fixed fact. People ought to sprinkle their aide walks with ashes.

Ox Dir -James Gordon Bennett, author o 'Mary Ann," and other "Fragments," is now engaged upon a poem of thrilling interest, entitled 'Lines to Some Ladies." It will be published in the Shelby News, and Sylvanus Cobb don't write for Cuba-What the Creoles Think-Invalids not Benefitted.

This extract from an Havana letter to the St ouis Republican contains matters of interest I suppose you have heard a great deal about the excitement caused by the reception of the President's message in Cuba. Having traveled over a considerable portion of the Island since its reception, and having coversed with many of the people on the subject. I feel able to give you a true statement of the feeling of the receiver of the feeling of the receiver. ment of the feelings of the people on the subject. When the message was first received in Havana, it created a foror of excitement, and that excitement has continued to spread over the entire length and breadth of this ever faithful isle. The Spaniards, as might have been expected, were indignant at it, but the Creales welcomed it with lignant at it, but the Creoles welcomed it with euthusiastic joy, and looked upon it as the fore runner of their deliverance from the yoke of Spansh tyranny. The officials in Havana drew up been sent all over the island for signatures.— Any one refusing to sign the petition is cast inte prison. Many Creoles have told me that they have to sign it, but that they wished the island to be innexed to the United States immediately. know that a large majority of the Creoles desi come a better and a happier people. I see by United States papers talk of a Cuban revolut This is entirely unfounded, as there are not lightest signs of a revolution here. Hence the war clouds that now overspread the ky of E love. Anstrian troops are fast pourny into Italy. Francis Joseph her any into Italy. s not a single sign on this island to indicate a stly desire that the island be annexed to the United States

A few words relative to invalids coming t Cuba for their health. I speak from dear bough experience, and I hope that some invalid may be deterred from coming here by the publication of this letter. If so, I shall have performed at least me act of humanity in my life. Invalids, do uo come to Cuba for your health. How many con sumptives have bid adicu to their native land and have never returned? In Cuba you can have in comforts; the hotels are miserable things. You have to sleep on a strip of canvas; you get you breakfast at ten o'clock, and your dinner at four All the attendance you would get would be two visits a day from a nigger, who can't speak a word of English, and whose sympathies could not be aroused by the most heart-rending scenes. If you die on this island it will cost your friends $600 before your remains can be taken away. If you die poor and the above expenses are not paid, your remains are taken in the public dead-cart, and your body is pitched into a ditch among the remains of panners and those who have heen exeasins of panpers and those who have been executed. The $600 is made up as follows: coffin $175; embalming, $200; churchtax, $72; hotel for bedding, about $40. Government tax, undertak er's fee, etc., etc., all of these bills must be paid efore the Government will allow the remains to eave the island. are benefitted by coming to Cuba. I have not seen one who has derived any material benefit, and the expenses here are most exorbit ant. The comforts of life are not to be had on the island for love or money. Having given the island a fair trial myself, I intend leaving in a few days for Texas or Florida.

I have some fine Missouri Land, in tracts of 320 acres each, Government title, for sale very low—offering a fine inducement for investment or trading.

LUNAR LIGHT THIS LAMP burns with a pure white brilliant light equal to gas, and is much cheaper than gas. The Lanr Light took the first premium at the last Mechanics' Fair in Louisville. One dollar's worth of Lenar Oil gives the light of $6 16 of Lard Oil, $4 86 of Whale Oil, $9 45 of Burning Fluid, $14 26 of Candles. Half a pint burns 15 hours, costing about by cents, giving a light equal to 5 or 6 star candles. Lunar Oil is not explosive, has no disagreeable smell, and is not liable to smoke. Lamps switchels for all purposes.

This Cordial with never fail to cure any of the above Macases, it taken per Urections on each bottle, in Ger man, English and French. Over Maif a Million of Bottles

To the Ladies.

Do you wish to be healthy and strong. Then go at once and get some of McLean's Strengtheuing Cord'al. It will strengthen and invigerate your bloom to flow through every vein, and the rich, rosy bloom of health to mount to your cheek again. Every rottle warranted to give satisfaction. We say to parents, if your children are sickly, pnny, or afficied with complaints prevalent among children, give them a small quantity of McLean's Cordial and it will make them health, fat and robust. Delay not a moment—try it and you will be convinced. It is Delicious to Take.

Every country merchant should not leave the city until he had procured a supply of McLean's Strengthen-ing Cordial. It sells rapidly, because it always cures. A liberal discount will be made to those who buy to sell A liberal discount will be made to those who buy to sell again.

CAUTION.—Beware of drugglats or dealers who may try to palm upon you some Eliter or Sarsaparilla trash, which they can buy cheap, by saying Its just as good.—Avoid such men. Ask for McLeun's Strengthening Condition, and take nothing else. It is the only remedy that will purify the blood thoroughly, and at the same time strengthen the system.

One tablespoonful taken every morning (fasting) is a certain perveniative for Cholera, Chills and Fever, Yellow Fever, or any prevalent disease.

McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment,
The best Liniment in the world for man or beast.
Another remarkable cure performed by McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment. Read for yourselves:
Thomas Ford, a blacksmith, living near Cassavenue, on Penthstreet, had a horrible running sore on his foot. He tried various Liniments, Salves, &c., but could do it no good. He despaired of sver being able to work at his trade again, because he could not bear any weight on his foot; and by one small bottle of McLean's Voicanic Oil Liniment, he is now perfectly cured.
Rheumatism, paralysis, neuralgia, bruises, sprains, stiffness in the joints or muscles, swellings, sore throat, earache or toothache, wounds, fresh cuts, sores, burns, seadids, pains, &c., yield to the 'imagic' Influence of this wonderful Liniment.
